Starting school and leaving a homely education in kindergarten behind has never been easy. We aim to make this transition easier for young school children. Our primary focus in our day-to-day work is that children would find joy in learning, be successful while acquiring knowledge and do that based on their own experiences in order to improve their creative thinking. All children are skilled or talented in one thing or another. It is our job to take notice of it and find that particular area.

Alongside learning, community-building is also a top priority for us. Children should enjoy themselves in a community where they spend a big portion of their day. They should learn to pay attention to each other and take responsibility. We strive to educate and teach the children entrusted to us in love and in one accord with parents.

In this spirit, we extend our warmest welcome to our future first graders.
